

The Never-ending Street Poster

In New Zealand, domestic violence is a generational problem. Almost 85% of all abusers, have at some point been a victim themselves. Shine, NZ's largest domestic abuse charity, needed to bring this to the public's attention and ask for their help. To do that, we used the power of a single poster, which placed side by side, demonstrated the sad reality of our problem.