

Famous yoghurt eaters. Maybe. Julian Assange.

Julian was a pretty typical kid. He spent a lot of his time on Magnetic Island with a fishing rod in his hands. But after he turned 16, he gave up angling for surfing and became, well, hooked on cyberspace.

Sitting at his computer, late into the night, Julian sustained himself with plentiful quantities of yoghurt.

Of course, when you don't know whether you're spending the next night in England or Sweden (or several years in the USA), it's not easy keeping a pot of your favourite yoghurt handy.

So Geoffrey Robertson QC, has cut short his Sydney holiday and flown to London with emergency supplies.

And regards from Kevin, of course.

A little pot of purity

Australian Made.
Australian Owned.
www.jalna.com.au